

Cats and dogs are two of the most popular pets in the world.

They are both adorable, loyal, and make great companions. However, they also have their differences.

For example, cats are independent animals while dogs are more reliant on their owner's for attention and affection. Additionally, cats typically don't require as much exercise as dogs and can be content spending the day napping, whereas dogs need to be taken on walks or runs and require more mental stimulation. All in all, both cats and dogs make great pets, it just depends on what you're looking for in an animal companion.

Questions

1. What are the most popular pets in the world?
2. What are the differences between cats and dogs?
3. Which pet is better suited for someone who wants a low-maintenance animal?
4. Which pet is better suited for someone who wants an active companion?
5. Which pet is right for you? and Why?