

The Bear's Honey Hunt

Once upon a time, a bear went out into the forest to find some honey. He had seen some bees flying around a tree and thought that there might be some honey in there. Sure enough, when he got to the tree, there was a hive full of honey! The bear was so excited that he ate as much honey as he could. After he was done, he went back to his cave and slept for the rest of the day.

The next day, the bear went back to the same tree to get more honey. But when he got there, the hive was gone! All that was left was a sticky mess on the ground. The bear was so sad that he didn't get any more honey that day.

But the next day, the bear found another hive! And this time, he was prepared. He brought a pot with him and was able to get some honey without making such a mess. The bear was so happy that he had found more honey and was able to enjoy it for days to come.

Questions

1. What did the bear do when he found the hive of honey?
2. How did the bear find the honey?
3. What did the bear do after eating honey?
4. How did the bear feel when he found out the hive was gone?
5. Where did the bear find another hive of honey?
6. How did the bear get the honey from the second hive?