

The Journey of a Story

Once upon a time, there were two friends who decided to write a story together. It was going to be the best story ever written, and they were both very excited about it.

They spent hours brainstorming ideas and plotting out the story. They wrote down every detail and made sure that everything fit perfectly together. They even came up with a great ending.

Every time one of them had an idea, the other would shoot it down. They argued endlessly about what should happen next in the story, and eventually, they just gave up altogether.

The story was never finished, and, likely, it never will be. But even though they were never able to finish it, the two friends had a lot of fun trying. And they always remember the great time they had working on it together.

They realized that even though they didn't agree on everything, they still made a great team. And they vowed to never give up on each other, no matter what.

Questions

1. What were the two friends trying to write?
2. How did they prepare to write the story?
3. Why did they give up writing the story?
4. Why couldn't they agree on anything?
5. What did they realize in the end?
6. How did their relationship change after writing the story together?