

Reading comprehension for Grade 3 or 4

Don't Put All Your Eggs in One Basket.

Communication is a central part of our lives, but have you ever stopped to think about how it has changed over time? From the way we communicate with our friends to the way businesses operate, communication has come a long way. Let's take a look at some of the ways communication has changed over the years.

In the past, people would typically write letters to their friends and loved ones who lived far away.

Nowadays, we can pick up our phones or open our laptops and instantly message or video chat with them no matter where they are in the world.

Another big change is the way businesses communicate. With the advent of email, businesses were able to quickly and easily send messages to employees, clients, and customers without having to wait for snail mail.

1. What kind of technology the does story talk about?
2. What are some of the ways people used to communicate?
3. How do people communicate now?
4. What are some of the ways businesses communicate now?
5. What is the technology that has changed communication the most?
6. What are some of the advantages of the new ways of communication?
7. What are some of the disadvantages of the new ways of communication?

One of the best things about online education is that you can learn at your own pace. If you're struggling with a concept, you can take the time you need to fully understand it before moving on.

On the other hand, if you already know a particular subject matter well, you can zip through those lessons quickly and move on to something else. There's no need to wait for everyone in the class to catch up; you can learn at your own speed and tailor your education to fit your needs.

Since there are no set meeting times or physical locations involved with online learning, it can be easy to fall into the trap of procrastination. It can be tempting to put off completing your assignments until the last minute or skipping class altogether when there's no one around to hold you accountable. But if you want to get the most out of your online education, it's important to develop self-discipline and make sure you're staying on top of your work.

1. What does the paragraph talk about?
2. What are some of the benefits of online education?
3. Why will we fall into the trap of procrastination?
4. How can you tailor your online education to fit your needs?
5. Why is it important to develop self-discipline when learning online?

There was once a farmer who had to sow his field with seeds. He was in a hurry to get the job done so he could move on to other things and he carelessly threw the seeds all over the field. Some of them landed on good ground where they took root and grew into healthy plants but most of them were lost, blown away by the wind or eaten by birds. The farmer had been so hasty that he had not done a good job and he ended up with a poor crop.

On the other hand, his neighbor took his time sowing the seeds one by one in neat rows. Even though it took him longer to do the job, he made sure that each seed was in a good spot where it would have a chance to grow. As a result, he ended up with a bountiful harvest.

The moral of this story is that haste makes waste. When we're in a hurry, we are more likely to make mistakes which can cost us dearly in the long run. It's important to take our time and do things carefully if we want to achieve success.

1. What did the farmer do with his seeds?
2. How did the farmer's neighbor sow his seeds?
3. What would happen if we were always in a hurry?
4. How did the farmer's neighbor sow his seeds?
5. What is the moral of the story?

Once upon a time, there was a lazy goat. All he wanted to do was lie around all day and eat grass. He didn't want to play with the other animals. Even when it came time to take a nap, he would just lie down right where he was instead of going to find a comfortable spot.

One day, he was lying in the middle of the pasture when a big storm came through. The other animals all ran to shelter, but the goat just stayed where he was. The storm blew him away and he ended up in a ditch. He was cold, wet, and very miserable.

Laziness had almost made him lose the ability to stand up. It took him a long time to finally get back on his feet and make his way back to the herd. The other animals were all very worried about him and welcomed him back with open arms.

The goat learned his lesson and from then on, he made sure to stay active and enjoy life. He knew that laziness was not good for him and it was only by being lazy that he had ended up in such a terrible situation.

1. What are the characteristics of the lazy goat?
2. What did the other animals do when the storm came?
3. What happened to the goat as a result of his laziness?
4. How did the goat feel after he learned his lesson?
5. Why is it important to not be lazy?